

Personal Sketch and Appreciation—His Early Experiences in His Career as a Lawyer.

In seven or eight instances in the entire history of the country the chairmanship of the Senate Law committee has been held by a man from the Central East. Senator Clark has been one of the chairmen. In his previous assignments usually go by seniority of service, and, as the East has adhered to the policy of selecting good men, it has been able to retain the chairmanship of this committee during the past several years. In the entire history of the Government.

Although Senator Clark seldom participates in the debates of the Senate, he is a man of great force and conviction in that body. His colleagues predict that Supa district in Iowa, narrated an interesting incident of his early manhood. He was then a student at the Iowa State political career in Iowa, and, after leaving the long line of banquettes, rested his eyes upon Senator Clark. Gentile said: "I have never before met a man like the one to whom I am greatly indebted for his efforts in my behalf in my first campaign. Shortly after I announced my candidacy, he called on me and urged me to go to Greeley to deliver a speech. I was met at the train by a beardless youth who appeared to be a student and who had previously been introduced to me by the club and had come to the train with other members of the club to welcome me. I had known him before and had never heard of him."

Blackwell, adding that he had not earned any money. In a few moments the messenger returned and informed Blackwell that it was Mr. and Mrs. Blackwell's wish that he should take it.

"But I won't take it," said Attorney Clark. "I would have a little less than robbery. Go back and tell the old man that I won't take it."

In a few minutes a familiar foot-step was heard coming up the stairs. Mr. Blackwell entered the office. "Long time," he checked down upon the desk he said. "Clark, this is yours. You must take it."

"But I have not earned it and I won't take it," replied the attorney.

"But if you don't take it you'll never get any more," said the old man.

Senator Clark's competitors spent thousands of dollars in an endeavor to add the prefix of "Senator" to their names.

Clark, the State of Wyoming has the confidence of the people of the State to a greater degree than has Senator Clarence Don Clark, and no man has been elected to the last election cost the Senator less than $100, and that sum was expended in hotel bills.

Senator Clark is truly a lovable man, and the people of the State Senate are held in greater esteem than his colleagues. With such an opportunity as his low position affords, who will predict that he will ever reach the heights of a political career? Judging from the past, he will rise to greater heights, and there

Those afflicted with Eczema know

Eczema made its appearance on my left limb the size of my thumb in 1893, and spread until it was large as my hand, burning, itching and paining me, and for which I could get no relief, until several of the best doctors advised by you I wrote and secured the advice of your physicians, commenced S. are forced through the glands and pores of the skin which set the flesh aflame. Since the cause of the disease is in the blood it is a waste of time to try to cure it with local applications; the cause must be removed before a cure can be effected. S. S. S. has no equal as a remedy for Eczema; it enters the blood and forces out the poison through the natural channels, and builds up the entire system. The skin becomes smooth and soft again, and the Eczema is cured. Cases that have persistently refused to be cured under the ordinary treatment yield to its purifying, cooling effect on the blood. "No," he said, "I realize that the Wyoming Senator, with an indifference that smacked strongly of sarcasm, continued the benevolent and kindly Senator to ask if I would have been thinking seriously about taking a trip abroad for a few months, and if I would select an acting chairman in my absence. At that position, and I requested the Republican members to remain after the committee had been selected, might obtain their consent. During my absence you will act as chairman of the committee."

"What," exclaimed Senator Clark, in blank amazement, "you selected me as

"Yes," said Senator Hoar. "I think a great deal of you, Senator, and I want to fill that position during my absence."

The bitter resentment which had permeated every fiber of the Wyoming Senator's mind toward the Massachusetts Senator, seizing the Massachusetts Senator's hand, he expressed his profound appreciation of the gesture. "I shall be here from day until Senator Hoar's eyes were closed in death the warmest personal friendship existed between the two men."

A Surprise to Clark.

Senator Clark's assignment to the Committee on Foreign Relations was brought about in a very unexpected manner, and Senator Cushman Davis was then chairman of that committee. A vacancy had occurred in the committee, and Senator Davis had to place. Senator Davis had watched with great interest the career of the Junior Senator from Wyoming, and he had walked over and sat down by Senator Clark's side in an almost effusive way, said: "Senator Clark, there is a vacancy on my committee, and I want to put you on it. I refer to the selection of a man to fill the place."

"There are several aspirants for the position who could fill it most creditably,"

Start as a Lawyer.

While teaching school in Greeley, Senator Clark studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1892 at Evanston, Wyo., and there entered actively on the on the practice of his profession. For some time he found the practice of law rather precarious undertaking. But by and by the tide of fortune turned. One morning an elderly gentleman entered his office and said:

"I need help. I have considerable business interest in Wyoming and I need the assistance of a lawyer. I want to retain you to look after my interests and I brought you over a little check as a re-

He laid the check down on the young attorney's desk and one can imagine Clark's amazement when he saw it was for $100,000. "I don't know Beck," he said with one of the wealthiest men in Wyoming, the president of the Evans-Hutton National bank and a power in the State.

"I am employing you as my attorney, not to get me out of court if I get in, but to keep me from getting into court," he said. "I believe you are just the lad I need in my law office."

"I will do the best I can," said Attorney Clark, and from that day until a few years ago, when the Senator was compelled to abandon the law for politics, coming, he was the attorney for A. C. Beck.

At the 1852 the Legislature of Wyoming failed to elect a Senator and Gov. Osborne appointed A. C. Beckwith to take the place. Beckwith was then a much-promoted question as to the right of the Governor to appoint a man to fill a vacancy in the United States Senate when the Legislature has declined to elect one. He would have supposed Mr. Beckwith would have consulted an attorney of National repute on a case of such great importance, but instead of that he went to the office of his local attorney and said:

"Mr. Clark, I want you to look up the question of the right of the Governor to fill a vacancy existing in the United States Senate by reason of the failure of the Legislature to elect one. I have written opinion. I understand that the Senate in such cases allows the appointee a certain sum for expenses, and as this is a matter of public money, I would suggest that whatever we get be equally divided between us. But, in the event that no appropriation is made by Congress, I think that you are properly compensated."

"Mr. Beckwith you have already paid me more money than I can ever use. I have ever had in my life. I will gladly render this service to you free of cost, and I hope that that may be able to give you a favorable opinion," replied Attorney Clark.

The attorney set about to look up the legal authorities and after consulting the law books he went to the office of his client. "Mr. Beckwith," said he, "I wish you would get somebody else to render this opinion for you. You are a politician and I am a lawyer. My opinion may be biased by my political views, and I would rather not give you an opinion upon a question of such great importance to you under the circumstances."

MRS. J. H. McCLURE, the mother of the little girl says: "Hazel has been very deaf for a year or more, the result of Chicken Pox. I could scarcely make her hear me, when she was in the same room with me—and even loud noises failed to attract her attention. She showed symptoms of Catarrh also—her head and nose stopped up—and at night she could scarcely breathe—sitting up in bed gasping for breath. In despair I took her to Drs. Shores & Shores, one month ago, and her progress has been wonderful.

Today SHE HEARS PERFECTLY—and I can call her when she is outside at play and she always hears me now—her head and nose is entirely clear, she sleeps like a baby—and I am so proud and grateful that I want to tell all Mothers what Drs. Shores have done for my little girl.
